

- New Student Orientation The New Student Orientation Program is the responsibility of the student orientation leaders who are usually juniors or seniors. During the academic year and summer months, these orientation leaders, in collaboration with orientation assistants, faculty and administration, develop and implement the orientation program for new students.
- Student Judicial Board Ten students serve as members of the Student Judicial Board who participate in training in the College Code of Conduct and Student Judicial Process. The board members hear cases of alleged violation of the Student Code of Conduct by their peers.
- First Year Experience Leaders Campus leaders are selected each year to co-instruct with a faculty member or administrator the First Year Experience Seminar for new students. The leaders who guide new students through their first semester on campus are a resource and role model for them.

The King's College Leadership Initiatives Program is coordinated by the Associate Vice President for Student Affairs Office in collaboration with the professional staff of Residence Life, Campus Activities, and the College Diversity Office, as well as students and staff.

Leadership Programs at King's College

The King's College Leadership Program seeks to provide a variety of experiences in order to enhance leadership qualities in students. You as a student will have opportunities to develop

- oral presentation skills along with the use of technology
- ethical decision-making
- confidence and skills to facilitate positive change
- appreciation for people who are different from yourself
- increased self-awareness and self-confidence
- application of formal learning to life experiences

The Leadership Program offers formal education by means of academic as well as non-credit learning experiences. A unique characteristic of the program is the emphasis in each of its components on the study of ethical decision making and the diversity of our society.

- Emerging Leaders Program This program is for first-year and sophomore students who have an interest in pursuing leadership roles on or off campus. It includes topics such as leadership skills, leadership styles, group process, motivation, ethics and diversity.
- Intercollegiate Leadership This is a program sponsored by seven local colleges/universities since 1987 and the Leadership Wilkes-Barre Program. The program includes six day-long seminars throughout the academic year and covers topics such as leadership skills, diversity, the media, justice and human services. The College selects seven students, usually sophomores and juniors, to participate in the program.
- Spring Leadership Conference This conference is a means of introducing new leaders to the elements of leadership styles, motivation and process. The conference features a nationally or regionally known leadership facilitator along with sessions that focus on the needs of organizations at King's.

- Special Topic Workshops and Retreats Throughout the year, workshops and retreats are offered that focus on specific topics such as diversity and leading small group discussions.
- Leadership for the 21st Century (PS/HRM/WMST 294) Taking this one-credit course, you will have the opportunity to understand and apply the seven values of the new social change model to actual ongoing leadership experiences within a club/organization in which you are an active member. The course is open to sophomores, juniors and seniors.

The application of formal learning to life experiences is an important part of leadership training. To develop this skill in students, the College's leadership program offers diverse educational experiences.

- Campus Ministry The staff of Campus Ministry offers a wide range of opportunities for students to serve the College and local community in leadership roles. Students become involved in liturgy, music, retreat planning and various programs that serve the local community.
- Volunteer Service The Office of Volunteer Services works to educate members of the King's community in regard to community outreach, social justice programming and SERVE experiences.

- Student Government and Class Officers Student Government and the class officer structure of the College provide formal leadership positions. The persons holding these positions enable the student voice to be heard on campus in our campus governance process.
- Campus Organizations At King's College there are nearly 40 campus organizations and clubs. They include business and health related organizations as well as those that are internationally or politically focused. In addition, there is a large variety of service and special interest organizations. The Student Media, Campus Activities Team (social programming board) and Residence Hall Council all have positional leaders and active members that provide excellent opportunities for leadership development.
- Residence Life The Office of Residence Life offers students several unique experiences. Twenty-nine students serve as resident or apartment assistants. These student leaders are responsible for fostering and overseeing the academic, personal and social development of a floor community of students. They are given intensified training and supervision by members of the Residence Life professional staff.
