KADJESKI'S KEYS

"PRESSING ON" by Jonathan Kadjeski, Student Success Counselor

In a 1938 preface, Ernest Hemingway wrote: "Now it is necessary to get to the grindstone again." He had already published four novels and forty-nine short stories, but he wasn't finished. He didn't merely want to write again; it was necessary – just like it is necessary for us get ready for the hard work approaching. Hemingway wrote some stories nobody else liked, but he pressed on. We, too, will press on, will learn and adapt, together at the grindstone as we begin a semester that we will surprise, challenge, and improve us all.
