Have you ever walked into a restaurant and noticed that the proprietors have the first dollar they ever earned framed on the wall? To the owner of this business, this single dollar not only represents their accomplishment of opening their own business but it also shows that the business is a success—they made money.

While owning a profitable business is a great way to make money, did you know there are numerous other ways to do it? Whether you're interested in becoming a trader on Wall Street, a stock market guru or aspire to become the next Donald Trump, King's has the faculty and resources to help you achieve your career goals.

Finance Today

At King's College you will develop your business skills by taking courses in the William G. McGowan School of Business. The McGowan School of Business is accredited by AACSB International - The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, which represents the benchmark of quality for business education worldwide. By earning AACSB Accreditation the McGowan School of Business has proven our commitment to quality and the continuous improvement of our business programs - a powerful differentiator worldwide.

"The responsibilities that financial executives face today are quite extensive," explains Barry Williams, dean of the William G. McGowan School of Business, "As a financial administrator, you may find yourself in a position where your decisions will have a dramatic impact on the operations of an entire company."
