

THEOLOGY

Why study theology? Many reasons! Theology invites you to ponder the meaning of human life, and to explore central questions about what you understand, believe, and hope. Theology encourages you to connect mind and heart, and to encounter the hopes and fears of people from different times and cultures. Theology helps you examine and seek the good, in your own life and in the communities around you.

Engaging the depth and diversity of theological reflection at King's, a Catholic college in the Holy Cross tradition, can enrich your future career or vocation—perhaps even the rest of your life.

What can I do with a degree in theology?

All professions can benefit from theology's complex thinking and profound concern for human beings, justice, and ethics. Theology connects with history, philosophy, and literature to understand human aspirations across cultures. It complements professional training in medical, business, law, or communications fields by demonstrating broad-mindedness and an ability to find unexpected solutions to persistent problems. Theology enriches engagement in social work, education, psychology, ministry, counseling and many other service-oriented careers.

Get ready to explore

Theology examines many different pressing questions, such as:

- What can theology teach about seeking wisdom, justice, or the good life?
- Can theology reconcile the love of

- God with a violent world?
- How does theology engage the discoveries of modern science?
- How can theology respond to today's different ethical issues, like poverty, immigration, or the environment?
- How can theology help build more just communities in our global and interconnected world?

Religious Life at King's?

Some study theology to explore a calling to ministry or religious life. Those considering Catholic ministry may participate in the Holy Cross Affiliates Program, with Holy Cross religious and others exploring religious callings. Those in other traditions can also be connected to academic and/or spiritual mentors.
