A student enrolled in the Executive Leadership Certificate for Healthcare Professionals program from the William G. McGowan School of Business will learn leadership skills and problem solving techniques.

Students who complete the graduate certificate program and then choose to enter the master's program may transfer the certificate courses (12 credits) into the 37-credit Master of Science (M.S.) in Healthcare Administration Program at King's College (<http://www.kings.edu/hca>). Up to nine additional credits can also be transferred into the M.S. program from a medical degree or a prior master's degree.

The Graduate Executive Leadership Certificate for Healthcare Professionals is designed to provide physicians and other healthcare professionals with basic business and management knowledge and skills in the field of health care. The Certificate Program consists of four graduate level courses (12 credits) and is offered online through King's College Distance Learning Platform (Moodle).
